Wendy Ramshaw is a London based contemporary jeweller. Born in Sunderland in 1939 she studied at Newcastle Collage and Reading University, she is now a champion of innovation in jewellery design. Her iconic ring sets have become one of her trademarks, and feature in over 70 public collections worldwide. The idea of displaying her rings on the plastic plinths, is not only original, but allows her jewellery to take on an identity and aesthetic beyond the body of the wearer.
